THE CALL TO UNITE
Voices of Hope and Awakening

TIM SHRIVER
Episode 16

Chairman of Special Olympics International and co-founder of UNITE

New podcast episode with Tim Shriver!

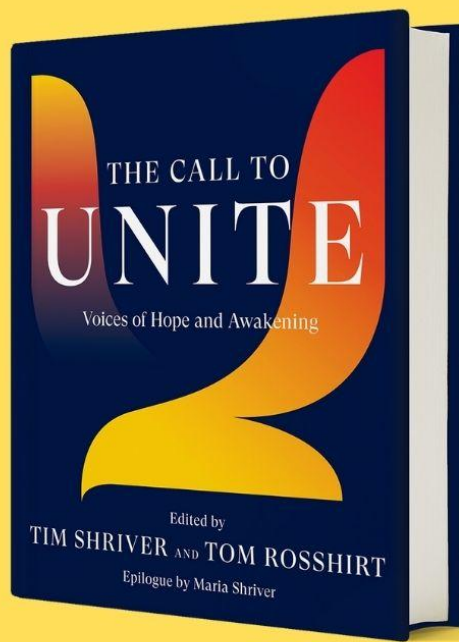

We were fortunate to have Tim Shriver on our 16th episode to talk about THE CALL TO UNITE: Voices of Hope and Awakening, a beautiful, life-affirming book he co-edited. It's 100+ first-person very short stories, from celebrities and from people you never heard of, which will inspire you with how "only in coming together can we be our happiest and our best."

As a high school history teacher, Tim worked with at-risk teenagers in low-income neighborhoods and became a founding force of the social and emotional learning movement. He later became the chair of Special Olympics, an organization founded and first-chaired by his mother, Eunice Kennedy Shriver, sister of President John F. Kennedy. As the architect of the War on Poverty in the 1960s, Tim's father, Sargent Shriver, founded the Peace Corps and other progressive programs.

Tim is an evolved soul who devotes himself to projects that look to turn us into one humanity. I urge you to take his invitation to join the movement that he invites on the homepage of UNITE, the enterprise he co-founded "to promote a culture where we cross the lines that divide us and work on ideas that unite us." A HUGE YES from me. Have a look!

PS: This Saturday, the Scientific and Medical Network (SMN), the organization I've touted before, is going to host a dialogue with Tim and David Lorimer, SMN's program director. After you see what a good platform SMN has for serious work on enlightening the world, become a member so you can participate in members-only dialogues.

*"This is our time.
This is a moment of great opportunity for change, a hopeful change, a healing change. Have faith in yourself, have faith in others. As many times as you may have been discouraged and as many times as you may have been disappointed by others, try again."*
