Reminders will go out a day before, 2 hours before, and a few minutes before.

We are in great good luck that David Lorimer will be with us again. Greg Palast and David Lorimer are titans from different orientations who have the same greatness of heart and soul. I could even wax dramatic enough to say that it could be a seismic move in the universe to deeply connect these two. Let's focus on them and draw out what they would do if they ran the world.

If you participate, please be up to speed on Greg and David:

We do have the very good fortune of being joined by Greg Palast who will be a focal point. If you had to reduce to one word what would be the most important thing for the future of civilization, that bridges the political and the spiritual, it could be truth. Politically that's obvious and spiritually it gets us into truth of being, where we aren't built to be material creatures but to realize the sacred nature of our existence. I see Greg as a pivotal figure who stands with feet in both worlds and is brilliant at being the most important investigative reporter on the planet – he isn't famous for some single instance where he was heroic but for being on top of many current injustices in the world. Listening to our newest podcast, with Greg, is required to attend this Zoom session:

How do you like the idea of a Wisdom Council, which, if it made pronouncements, would have the world's ear? We talked about that on Sunday. Here are our prospects—not all a done deal—and some I'd mentioned previously. Think about more.

Dalai Lama, Oprah, Marianne Williamson, The Elders, Jane Goodall, David Attenborough, Greta Thunberg, Bene Brown, Gabor Mate, Warren Buffett, Mackenzie Phillips, Angelina Jolie, Andy Cohen, Andrew Yang, Bill Moyers, David Lorimer, Michael Moore, Brian Swimme, Greg Palast, Tim Shriver, Larry Dossey, Vandana Shiva

Looking at what we'd do first to get to a compassionate world, my suggestion was worldwide UBI to get everyone out of survival so we can be creative together. And there's where a wisdom council could come in. Get highly respected world figures to deliberate on how to get us over the cusp we're on between a worldview based on self-interest and one where we also care as much about each other, and what they'd suggest would get worldwide attention.

When we gave opinions about what humanity is here for, I was surprised about how much agreement there was that we exist to evolve. We are learning how to be human and if we got it very right we'd be able to put all our energies into making a paradise on earth. Why not? As we dream up what could be done, here we are in the age of the Internet. It can carry ideas everywhere. All we need are some middle schoolers to help us with how.

Happy holidays to all...
