What is the story of the universe?

BRIAN SWIMME

Podcast Episode 9
Evolutionary Cosmologist

Brian Swimme has the map, from the origin of the universe till now, where humanity is the first species that could change Earth – for the better or for the worse. The Christian story would be supplanted by the universe story for how to live our lives for the better.

A mathematician by training, Brian is a professor at the California Institute of Integral Studies, in San Francisco, where he's a brilliant teacher of evolutionary cosmology in the Philosophy, Cosmology, and Consciousness program. By my lights, he's the most valuable voice on the planet. He gives us a way to perceive the human situation so we see what we are doing here and what our destiny is. He is so inspirational that if I got the world to tune into what Brian delivers I would feel like I had fulfilled my mission in life.

The Universe is a Green Dragon is his masterwork. Do you know anyone who has bought 1,000 copies of any book? That would be me, since 1989, when I shut myself in my bedroom for two days to read it. And, Brian's gifts as an author are matched by a personal style that makes him a candidate for being my favorite human who I didn't give birth to.

What a sweet surprise it was to discover this on Brian's Wikipedia page: "Suzanne Taylor, founder of Mighty Companions, says Swimme is a charismatic person who seeks to place scientific technology in its context of the infancy of the earth community as it struggles for re-connection to its sacred source. She believes that he sweeps us into the grand picture of human beings as the current culmination of the still-evolving universe."

What a enlightening and empowering discussion! As always, Suzanne Taylor has a penchant for finding and engaging truly original thinkers, people who move us to consider new ways of looking at ourselves and each other. This interview with peace, environmental and campaign finance reform activist Jodie Evans is truly transformational. Consistently, after listening to “Sue Speaks” podcasts, I feel more optimistic about the future, and that’s becoming harder and harder to come by in these troubled times. I’m truly grateful to have found this podcast, and wholeheartedly hope and pray that more and more people find it and give it a listen!
