

To view this as a webpage Click Here

Two illuminating pieces worth reading and sharing...

I consider the two pieces in my blogpost to be among the most important things I ever have shared. I'm putting them together here because they both take us deep into the heart of the heightened reality we are in. What I understood before I read them, about the challenges of being black and about what's wrong with the police, skimmed the surface with general ideas. These let me understand viscerally what generated them, taking me from my head to my heart and hopefully making me a more powerful advocate for a better way.

They are written so well by non-writers that it makes me wonder if there's some trickery, where either or both of these don't come from the people they purport to be from. But, whoever wrote them, they have me convinced of the truth of their stories, and I am hopeful that these authors are as illuminating to you as they have been to me.

The Ernest Skelton Story

A white woman asks a black man what it's like for him on a day-to-day basis

Confessions of a Former Bastard Cop

A startling tell-all of how cops are trained

Suzanne Taylor

SUESpeaks.org

SUESpeaksPodcast.com

If this email has been forwarded to you, please don't unsubscribe. That will unsubscribe the sender.
For podcast updates and other inspirational material sign up for the SUE Speaks mailing list.

CONNECT WITH US

