RICHARD GROSSINGER

Podcast Episode 10

Anthropologist and Author, Bottoming Out the Universe

Richard Grossinger is an extraordinarily perceptive person about the very basic questions of who we are and what we are doing here. His knowledge ranges from what's academic that he got from what's been written, to what he's learned from working with many body-oriented therapeutic modalities, to who knows how he got insight into deeper and broader issues about consciousness that books and science don't address. He and I have known each other for a very long time and have had many profound conversations about the nature of reality, about which Richard has written some 40 books. The most recent one is a rewrite of The Night Sky, a major book he wrote decades ago that now, after years of living have fleshed out his understanding, he considers to have been notes for the current version. Brian Swimme, my last podcast guest whose story of the universe is the one I cotton to, said this about the new version of The Night Sky:

"Richard Grossinger's new book, The Night Sky, should be heralded as the publishing event of the decade. This is a book that has the power to change your relationship to the universe. I would even say it has the potentiality to participate in the evocation of a new civilization."

It's now been a few years that Richard has been working on his next book, Bottoming Out the Universe: Why There Is Something Rather Than Nothing. In this podcast, you'll get the jump on its pending publication when I probe Richard for the current thinking of one of the most important voices on the planet. It's good material to prompt listeners to give their opinions on our relationship to the universe. I'll engage with your comments and so will Richard!

Podcast Episode 9
with Brian Swimme, Evolutionary Cosmologist...

"I'm on a mission to teach humans that we are a 14 billion year creative process. That's who we are in a primary sense. Every person, every animal, every rock, everything is a mode of a 14 billion year creative process."

- Brian Swimme, Evolutionary Cosmologist

Here's what people are saying about the
SUE Speaks Podcast: Searching for Unity in Everything

Laurel Airica · November 26, 2019

I so appreciate the quality of guests that Suzanne interviews — and the quality of her questions, which bring out such fascinating information from her guests through these excellent dialogues. I've known Suzanne for years and she never fails to attract beautiful, brilliant people into her life — and then to share them generously with her circle of friends. That circle of friendship keeps widening, so what a blessing it is that Suzanne is now making these catalytic conversations available to people everywhere. Thank You, Suzanne, for all that you do to awaken us to the Unity in Everything!
