11:00 am - 12:30 pm pacific (7:00 - 8:30 pm in England)

Below is the mailing we sent to people who signed up – in case you didn't see it. Also, try again if you got an error trying to enter names for an ad hoc Wisdom Council.

David Lorimer will be in our Zoom meeting and I urge you to watch his video below. It will not only tune you into David, a very valuable person, but you'll also hear ideas that we'll talk about in our Zooms.

Welcome to my inner circle!

Thanks so much for signing up for what I hope will have the flavor of the in-person meetings we used to have, where people really met. On the cusp of a move humanity is making into mutuality being as important as our self-interest is, we'll be looking at what could be done to help get us on this next rung of the evolutionary ladder.

If this has legs, there will be come-when-you-can bi-monthly ZOOM conversations. They'll be on the second and fourth Sundays of the month, 11:00 am -12:30 pm pacific (7:00 - 8:30 pm in England), with another half hour possible. Here's the link for the start this Sunday, November 14. Reminders will go out a day before, an hour before, and a few minutes before. To talk or to post in the chat, your video has to be on – to just listen, off-camera is okay.

A few of you need to sign up for my other mailing lists: <https://tinyurl.com/y7u6o6uk>. There's a main list and a list for A DELIGHT A Day which is too good a weekday charmer to not get. Some who are on the main list don't get the DELIGHTS, and you can rectify that now!

Since money does talk, to qualify participants for being serious I said in my first announcement this would cost a buck. However, your willingness to participate does the job so keep your dollars.

Here's something I've been working on:

Bucky Fuller didn't get glasses in his early years. I don't have a profession in my later ones. Because Bucky couldn't see the blackboard he didn't get lost in the details and was free to contemplate the big picture. That's what I'm looking at, where I don't have anything else consuming me or convincing me that solutions to what ails us would be too difficult to come by.

We have an interconnected world. The internet is all of us. Amazon is our corner store.

We eat tropical fruit in wintertime. Chinese goods abound in American markets. Operationally, we are one world. That's one target. And everyone has such excellent weapons, with nuclear arsenals that might even be able to blow up the planet.

We are insane doing business as usual. If I ran the world, I'd focus on our mutuality. It's where we'd care about each other as much as we care about ourselves. This isn't pie in the sky dreaming. It's the necessity of our day.

I'd join any huddle to deal with what could be done that could make a difference. Since I haven't found any, I'm sticking my neck out, thinking that if people like me talk to one another we even could be causal about moves that could and should be made.

Welcome to The Club of One Heart.

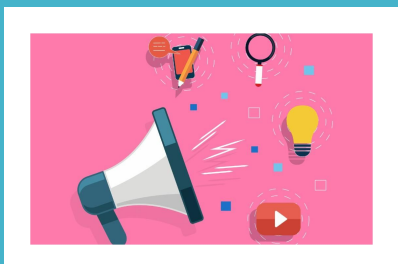

What our Zoom will entail

If you ruled the world, what you would do? When Michael Moore said he would end poverty, which is my #1, it was the first time I'd heard anybody else say that. It moved me from concern that I didn't know enough about the real world to turning my whispers into roars, and Pope Francis just coming out with the same to-do is icing on my activism cake. I'll put that idea and others of mine on the table and I look forward to also talking about your ideas for how to get to the world we'd like to be in.

To do prior to our ZOOM

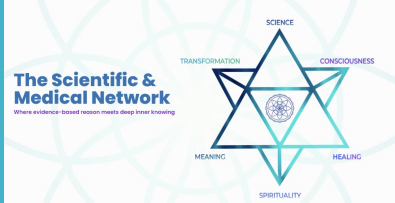

If I ruled the world, I'd create an ad hoc Wisdom Council. Now, I'm collecting names. Who is of like mind with you, where you feel a deep resonance with whatever they say? Please make entries on this google doc.

A peak at where I'm coming from

My instructions for what I'm to do come from the Intelligence, which has been giving me marching orders since 1989. More recently it said this:

Dialogue is the necessary activity now to save the earth. Everyone sees glimmers of a peril looming; all must attend. Reordering must come. It will not result from legislation or from mediating between warring factions. Any imposition will just create more war. No, this needs to BE an otherness that births inside the womb of now. This is the voice of humanity's soul. Snap to attention. Come off the meditation cushion. The family needs to forge. The mother is overblown with pregnancy. A creature must emerge.

David Lorimer speaks with my voice

My world became international thanks to Covid, and the Scientific and Medical Network, out of England, which is devoted to up leveling our state of consciousness, is my hangout. I'm working on the Wisdom Council idea and other things with David Lorimer, the program director, and you'll get

a great introduction to him here.
