I loved our first Zoom. It was very much what I had in mind with people being authentic and being wise and I so appreciated everyone. I so appreciated everyone. Fingers crossed this continues to be a happening thing where we develop a compelling slate of ideas for what could make this a caring world let alone a world where humanity survives!

Our second Zoom soiree is this Sunday, 11/28, at 11:00 am PDT (7:00 – 8:30 pm in England).

Video needs to be on to participate. Email reminders will go out the day before, 2 hours before, and a few minutes before.

If our second and fourth Sundays don't work for you or you aren't really into how we might turn the world around, you can unsubscribe yourself at the bottom of this mailing. Rest assured I noticed you were willing to jump into my unknown, and I won't be offended if anyone leaves it.

Club doesn't mean what it traditionally does. This paragraph, to describe a state of being that I have in mind for us, was written with the late, great, and beloved Lex Hixon to provide a way for us to identify and unify ourselves so we could become a force. Lex was an enlightened rebel who had the cachet to get the world's attention and the means to fund things to do, and had he not left us a lot of years ago the world might be in a different place:

"A coalition already exists in spirit. It is coming together now in the social context by the attraction of its unconventional intelligence and compassionate form of high-mindedness. This natural coalition is drawn together by the recognition that the elevation of consciousness is our fundamental life work. This is a genuinely democratic, self-organizing force, flowing through persons of all descriptions. This force does not flourish as any highly structured form. It is not an institution or a foundation or a non-profit company or anything conventionally named. This coalition is a living organism -- natural, wild, free. It is made up of individuals devoted to serving the world and developing themselves as finely tuned instruments of service. They learn to gather in the energy of will-to-good, from which authentic goodwill flows out subtly to the entire world."

I used to produce events where people not only would come for a speaker or an experience but also for good company. In my search for how to get Zoom to be like my home soirees, these were short-answer questions we went around with that will be posed to new people in future Zooms:

- Where are you from? What got you here?
- If you ruled the world what's the first thing you would do?
- What would a good outcome of this enterprise be for you?

At this time of division and acrimony in the world, we'll produce a dossier of how an intelligent world could be run. Our slate will be about major moves we could make and also will contain "this and that's." Here's the start of it:

- Address haves and have nots: food, shelter, education, and health care for all civilized people
- A global Wisdom Council – they understand the deeper laws of life
- Tim Shriver is our President
- Everyone reads The Universe is a Green Dragon
- Circles of Trust – maybe 8 people -- for everyone
- Acceptance supplants forgiveness
- Everyone gets A Delight a Day
- No billionaires
- Teach consciousness – that you're not your ego
- Recognize and appreciate the 3rd stage of life: elderhood
- Personally and privately beam love at everyone
- Honest media reporting – somehow

And then there were things we couldn't actually do, but are salvations we could hope for:

- Alien visitation
- A deus ex machina (from Greek tragedies where a God descends and fixes things)

On Sunday I'm going to show you something I guarantee will blow most of your minds. The idea of a miracle would be logical, only it isn't a miracle. It is something that is being done that I bet hardly any of you know about and something that would become valuable to you personally. It involves the power of thought and I look forward to sharing it with you and speculating about how this knowledge might be the big game-changer. And, I'll ask you to share impossible things that have happened to you, so think about what those might be.

PS: A TREAT FOR YOU TOMORROW

For a free ticket, scroll down to "How to join or view the event on Thursday 25th, 4:00 PM (GMT)." If Anne Baring, who has been an inspiration to me, ran the world, the feminine, that got marginalized when we started to worship what is divine outside ourselves, would be reestablished as what gentles the world. The others on the program also are wonderful and worth getting up for at 8:00 am on the West Coast on a perfect day to give thanks for this special treat!
