

THE CLUB OF ONE HEART

Brainstorm with me about how the world could be.

Michael Moore, who started a paying membership for people to be in interactions with him, got me thinking about how much I'd like a sounding board where people toss ideas around with me.

Here is Michael Moore in his first interaction with his members, where my question to him, at 18:55, was what I've been asking others lately, "What would you do if you ruled the world?" There's very little conversation about that – mostly we talk about what's wrong. Even Michael reacted as if it's unfamiliar territory, and if you listen to the end you'll hear him bring it up several times. And I was empowered to trust my opinions about what could be done by his response about what he would do. It's what I've never heard anyone say and is what I've been saying!!!

Since days long ago, when I was enough of a blackjack whiz to cause a stir in Las Vegas, I've pondered what something called The Club of One Heart could be. Let's try it for this.

This is a poll to see whether there's interest. Since money is entwined with value, if this is a go I'll ask participants to send me $1 to get real about us shooting the cosmic breeze. And, in our first get-together, to be announced, we'll deal with what each of us would do if we ruled the world!
